British Planes Blast At Three Japanese Bases In Attempt To Relieve Incessant Pressure; Huge Fires Are Started

(By Associated Press)
SINGAPORE, Jan. 10.—Battle-wearied British soldiers engaged in extremely bloody fighting in western Malaya have withdrawn "farther to the south," the British Far Eastern command acknowledged today, while British planes blasted three Japanese bases in an apparent attempt to relieve the incessant pressure.

The British aviators fiercely attacked Japanese objectives at Sungai Patani and Singora, on the eastern coast of the narrow strip of Thailand territory on the northern part of the Malay peninsula, and at the communications center of Ipoh, some 100 miles north of the western Malayan battle zone. The raiders were said to have caused explosions and huge fires. The extent of the withdrawal from the scene of furious fighting in the Slim river sector 50 miles north of Kuala Lumpur, Japan's immediate objective, was not given. Kuala Lumpur is 240 miles north of Singapore.

(Domei Japanese news agency, claimed in a Tokyo broadcast today that the Japanese had broken through British lines and were within 10 miles of Kuala Lumpur Friday night.)

The communiqué said there had been two air raid alarms in Singapore during the past 24 hours but no bombs were dropped.

Aircraft of the Far Eastern command struck this morning at Japanese bases in Japanese-occupied Thailand and the Malay states, the communiqué said.

Several large fires were reported started at Sungai Patani, in Thailand on the eastern coast of the Malay peninsula, while at the

(By Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.—The treasury was reported today to have proposed substantially smaller individual income tax exemptions as one of the many methods of bringing in $9,000,000,000 additional revenue proposed by President Roosevelt in the new budget.

Lowering of the present $1,500 exemption for married persons to $1,000, and reduction of the present $750 exemption for a single person to $500 was said to have been discussed in a preliminary conference of Democratic and Republican legislators with secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau and his advisors yesterday.

Wouldn't Be Enough
Some members of the senate finance committee said, however, that these suggested changes would provide only relatively small portions of the $7,000,000,000 the President has requested in general taxes. About $2,000,000,000 in additional social security taxes is expected to be asked in separate legislation later.

Chairman George (D-Ga.) of the senate finance committee said he believed that in order to produce $9,000,000,000 in new revenue this year, it would be necessary to enact levies which eventually should bring in $12,000,000,000 annually.

Some members of congress discussed payroll or sales taxes. Others advocated increased excise levies on such commodities as liquor, tobacco and gasoline.

Senator Taft (R-Ohio), said it was becoming evident that either a withholding tax—with the government taking a percentage of each weekly pay check—or a retail sales levy would have to be resorted to if the President's budget requirements were to be met.

Prefers Payroll Tax
"Personally," the Ohio senator said, "I would prefer the levying of a payroll tax, possibly of 10 per cent, because it would be less inflationary in its effect than a sales tax."

He estimated that a 5 per cent tax on the sales of virtually all commodities except food, clothing and medicine would yield about $2,000,000,000. On the other hand, he said, it was quite probable that a 10 per cent payroll tax would bring in $5,000,000,000 additional.

If the latter tax were levied, he continued, adjustments ought to be made in the lower income brackets.

Instructed

The Salem tire rationing board will meet next Thursday to act upon the first applications for tires and tubes under the government's tire rationing program now in effect.

The dealers in the city acquainted themselves with the regulations at a meeting with the board last night in the Memorial building. A general discussion was held, presided over by John T. Burns, county coordinator.

Eligible persons seeking new tires or tubes should make application to their tire dealer, who will examine the applicant's present tires. If it is necessary to remove a tire from the wheel for inspection, a charge of 50 cents for each tire removed is assessed the applicant.

By Thursday the board will be ready to act upon half of its quota for the month of January which includes 24 heavy truck tires and 20 tubes and nine light tires and eight tubes.

The light tires and tubes are those for cars and trucks under a ton and a half capacity. Heavy trucks are considered those above the ton and a half class.

Notification of their selection to attend the school was made today by the Ohio State Council of Defense.

DAIRYMEN TO MEET
HERE WEDNESDAY

A meeting which may lead to the eventual expansion of artificial breeding service to dairy heads in Columbiana, Mahoning and other Northeastern Ohio counties will be held on Wednesday, Jan. 14, in the basement of the Methodist church in Salem.

Plans for this session were announced early this week by Agricultural Extension Agents J. C. Hedge and Floyd Lower.

C. L. Blackman, dairy extension specialist from Ohio State university, Columbus, and Trumbull County Agent C. D. McGrew will be the chief speakers on the day's program, which will get under way at 10:30 a. m. and close at 3 p. m.

Blackman, who spent some time last year visiting other states where artificial insemination programs are proving highly successful, will discuss breeding principles to follow in good management of dairy herds.

McGrew will be present in the afternoon to tell of the artificial insemination program which has been under way in Trumbull and Ashtabula counties for the last several months.

Incidentally, the first calves resulting from artificial breeding in that area began arriving late in December. The first was born on Christmas day at the Trumbull county experiment farm and the second in the herd of E. D. Humphries in Ashtabula county. Both were Holsteins.

A further discussion by Blackman during the afternoon will be on the subject of selecting herd sires to increase production.

Submarine And Air Raids
Are Reported In Netherlands Area

(By Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.—Official advice indicated today that the Japanese were ignoring the isolated Philippine area (or the moment to strike ever nearer The Netherlands East Indies in prelude to a new invasion effort.

While fighting between General MacArthur's army and the Japanese was said to have dwindled to minor skirmishes, United States and Dutch navy announcements told of Japanese submarine and air raids in Netherlands Indies waters. Authoritative quarters in Batavia believed a major Japanese invasion thrust was imminent.

The 8,000-ton American ship Ruth Alexander of the American President line was destroyed by an enemy plane off the Dutch islands, the navy announced, with one crew member killed and four injured.

The Dutch disclosed the sinking of a Netherlands freighter by a Japanese submarine in the Java sea. Only three were saved.

Japanese submarine operations off the American west coast, meanwhile, were said by the navy to have been narrowed by coastal defense forces. Similarly, the navy reported that "operations continue against enemy submarines" in the central Pacific.

A report that an Axis submarine was operating in New England waters proved groundless.

Although communiques failed to disclose the disposition of General MacArthur's army, military officials expressed a belief that he had withdrawn his forces possibly 15 miles to a new Philippine defense line since repulsing the heavy Japanese assault last Sunday.

Nazi Foreign Office Makes Middle-Of-The-Night Denial
Following Revolution Reports As Result
Of German Reversals

(By The Associated Press)
Adolf Hitler's own press chief prepared the German nation for a jolt today, solemnly acknowledging that Nazi military operations "have reached an extremely serious and indeed critical phase" as the Russians swept on to new triumphs.

Soviet front-line dispatches declared that Red army troops advancing over the wintry battlefields at a pace of more than four miles a day had recaptured Mosalsk, 47 miles west of Kaluga, and further tightened the vise on 100,000 Germans still holding out at Mozhaisk.

Russian spearheads were reported within 25 miles of the Vyazma-Bryansk line, where Hitler is expected to rally his fleeing armies for an attempted stand deep in the rear of the Mozhaisk salient 57 miles west of Moscow.

A British radio broadcast said the Russians also were plunging forward in the Orel sector, 200 miles southwest of Moscow, "and killed here 5,000 German soldiers in the last five days."

The Swiss radio, quoting dispatches from Moscow, said communications on the 600-mile rail line between Moscow and Rostov-On-Don had been reestablished.

A bulletin from Hitler's field headquarters acknowledged that "defense fighting continued with undiminished violence" on the central (Moscow) front and in the northern (Leningrad) sector.

Where German reports a few months ago told of Nazi panzers raging over the Soviet countryside, sweeping wide to engulf and finally "annihilate" trapped Russian forces, today's dispatches pictured the Germans as suffering the same fate.

On the Leningrad front, Russian columns driving down the Volkhov river were reported advancing upon the big German base at Novgorod, 120 miles southwest of Leningrad, in an encirclement move which might cut off the Nazi siege armies before Leningrad itself.

In the Crimea, the Germans faced a similar encirclement by Russian troops now pouring into the Black sea peninsula in great numbers.

Correspondents Are Called Out Of Beds

SOMEWHERE ON THE GERMAN FRONTIER, Jan. 10.—Advices reaching this border point state that persistent reports of incipient revolution in Germany following increasing reverses on the eastern front have impelled the Nazi foreign office to make a middle of the night denial.

Foreign correspondents one night this week were called from bed to be told individually by telephone of the reports, which the foreign office attributed to British and American sources, and to hear the official denial.

While correspondents themselves could confirm that no open or organized revolution movement existed in Berlin, some expressed surprise that the stories created so much concern in Wilhelmstrasse that an immediate denial was considered necessary.

The German press, now acknowledging the seriousness of the situation on the eastern front, has denied, however, reports that the Germans are building a defense line along the Oder river in eastern Germany.

Japs Reinforce Army In Luzon Drive

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.—The war department reported today intensive patrolling and artillery duels between the Philippine defenders and the Japanese and said heavy enemy reinforcements were being brought up.

These reinforcements were apparently ordered in preparation for a renewed Japanese offensive drive on Luzon.

Also the department said a considerable number of enemy vessels had appeared off the coast of the southernmost Philippine island of Mindanao, indicating the possibility of additional Japanese landings there.

Hostile air activity again was said to be limited to observation flights. It was the third successive day of a relative lull in fighting between General Douglas MacArthur's little army and the foe.

The text of the communiqué, based on reports received until 9:30 a. m., eastern standard time.

"1. Philippine Theater. Intensive patrolling and artillery duels characterized ground operations on the island of Luzon yesterday. Heavy enemy reinforcements are being brought to the front and other indications point to a resumption of an offensive drive by the Japanese.

"Hostile air activity was again limited to observation flights.

AMERICANS SUFFER BEAUTIFULLY

A few years ago the United States was having a depression. People almost never talked about anything else. It was, they agreed, the worst thing that had ever happened.

They hoped things soon would get better. They had to hope that or life wouldn't be worth living. Things were in an awful mess. They never had been worse and there was no reason to believe they'd ever get better.

Casualty a foreign visitor would point out mildly that things really weren't so bad in this country; comparatively speaking. But that didn't do much good. Americans went right on suffering—beautifully. They didn't want to be disturbed.

And today there is a war. The depression has been forgotten. There are signs that Americans may be getting ready to suffer beautifully again. They are preoccupied at the moment with the problem of the federal budget and the prospect of heavier taxation than they ever dreamed of before. Many of them are stewing about the difficulty of keeping their automobiles in operation. Some are gazing moodily into the future and seeing nothing there but misery; they already are wishing for a return of the good old days when the biggest problem in the United States was unemployment.

Prime Minister Churchill recently reminded them on the occasion of being served eggs at the White House that at home an egg a week was all that anyone could expect. His reminder was so gentle, perhaps, that it missed the mark. It will take more than that, probably, to remind us suffering Americans that we are and will remain comparatively well fixed. Before suffering too much, we should remember what the war has meant to other populations. If suffering is inevitable only by the degrees of suffering prevailing at the moment—and there is a good argument for that point of view—Americans have no grounds for complaint. They are repeating their depression mistake of thinking too much about their own plight and ignoring the plight of others.

TAX NOTES

There are politicians in Washington who never thought they'd live to see the day when a federal sales tax could be discussed openly without committing political suicide, or at least inviting assault with intent to kill by minorities that saw red every time a sales tax was mentioned.

There are observers everywhere in the United States who would have given odds of 20 to 1 any time since 1933 that they'd never live to see the day when President Roosevelt would say he was ready to consider a federal sales tax—something he did in his budget message.

And there are politicians and observers and millions of ordinary citizens who never thought they'd live to see the day when it would be admitted officially—as it is being admitted now—that the cost of federal activities could not be met more or less painlessly; i. e., by pretending that it was sufficient to ask the rich.

Things have been happening with breath-taking rapidity. But nothing has proved more breath-taking so far than the apparent acceptance of fiscal reality by a country which probably has engaged in more pious and fancy kidding about the sources of the money spent by government than any other country on earth. At long last it seems about to become painfully clear to everybody that the people support the government; that the government cannot support the people.

SLAPPING DOWN THE TREASURY RAIDERS

What the future may hold is uncertain, except for a few things. One is the disappointment of the Ohio taxpayers who planned to cut the revenue surplus in the Ohio treasury. Gov. Bricker has slapped them down—officially and hard.

Outbreak of war already had ruined their party, they felt obliged to go to Columbus anyway to let the governor and his touch. In words of one syllable, he made it plain he will not call a special session of the legislature to organize a treasury raid. Furthermore, Ohioans can be thankful that the state government will go into 1942 with a little left over to make up for dwindling revenues. There is nothing more to be said, except that Gov. Bricker, having done a good job so far, now must follow through with every possible saving in state government to match the barrel scraping the cities must do for the lean years immediately ahead.

OBJECTION

Personification has become a bad habit of press and radio commentators. They are fond of saying that "Hitler struck today . . . Stalin struck back . . . Mussolini trembled." German and Italian commentators are similarly fond of ascribing the action of Great Britain and the United States to Winston Churchill and Franklin D. Roosevelt. It's a sloppy way of thinking. Hitler, Stalin, Mussolini, Churchill and the President could disappear, and the war would continue.

Even Emperor Hirohito of Japan is being used to personify his country's aggression—and nothing could be more ridiculous. Hirohito as an individual has no more influence over Japan than Mussolini has over Germany. Unlike Mussolini, who formerly had great influence, Hirohito never was anything but a figurehead. He is comparable to King George VI of Britain, who is deeply revered as the occupant of an exalted position but exercises no direct influence over national policy.

If the commentators will just let Hirohito vegetate with his poetry, his milk-white horse and his hobby of studying forms of marine life it will be all right with the audience. It can get steamed up about the "Japs" without Hirohito. It can get steamed up about these allies without Hitler and Musso, too, but those old favorites would be hard to ditch at this late date.

THE STARS SAY:

For Sunday, January 11

SUNDAY'S horoscope may hold portent of difficulty, disaster and sorrow as well as losses through various avenues of adverse visitation, except in the conventional spiritual or mystical vocations and avocations of the day. In all phases of calamity or misadventure this quality of tact, strategy, compromise and spiritual guidance may unite to avert or thwart dangerous situations.

Those whose birthday it is may find themselves in a year in which all success and satisfaction may depend upon their own ability to govern their own wayward tendencies and turbulent impulses. Disputes, quarrels, emotional outbursts and physical indulgences may lead to a chain of disaster, loss, suffering and humiliation. Both public and private disaster seem imminent but for unusual restraints, precautions, with finesse, tact and strategem dominate.

A child born on this day may be tempestuous, wayward, indulgent, nervous and should be given strict early training and discipline.

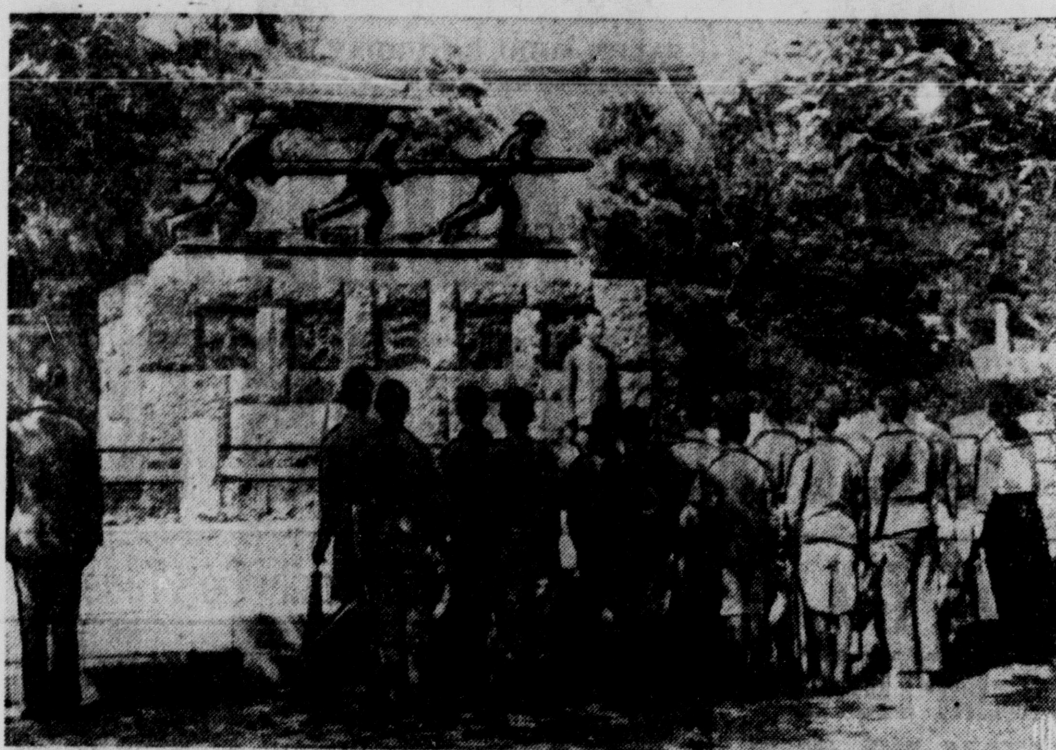

For Monday, January 12

MONDAY'S astrological forecast is for a fairly successful and pleasant state of affairs in business and with associates in employment, public or group relations, and with those from whom favors or advancement are sought. But there may be difficulties or unhappiness through females, relatives, strangers and elders. At the same time gain may be had through old persons or institutions.

Those whose birthday it is may work for promotion, favors, or preferments with moderate ambitions, but are cautioned to be tactful, discreet and use discrimination with relatives, elders and some superiors. Strangers and other contacts may disappoint while certain others fulfill many happy expectations, especially in a sentimental way. Safeguard the health and the family's.

A child born on this day may have conflicting qualities and abilities with many vicissitudes in life. Its relatives of the fair sex may cause it grief.

NO VALUE TO MACHINE HEART TESTS

That's Something That Can't Be Done Mechanically

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

I have seen them in some cities and I understand they are pretty widely distributed. They are machines to which you go up and deposit ten cents in a slot and receive the machine's record of your blood pressure and pulse rate.

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through this column.

This is a machine age and the American people have always believed in machines—maybe a little too much. But allow me to say that if there is anything on earth that you don't want a machine for, it is to find out the state of your heart. You need another human being who has a heart himself and who knows a lot about ten thousand other people's hearts.

To try to analyze any benefit you might obtain from this machine, let us say that in the first place a record of your blood pressure and pulse rate taken with about twenty curious eyes on you doesn't mean anything whatever. In the second place, a knowledge of your blood pressure and pulse rate alone, even if there are no eyes on you, doesn't mean anything whatever; or at least it means so little as to be negligible.

Dangerous Gadget
The machine in question, according to the Journal of the American Medical Association, has been fixed so that it will not give a blood pressure higher than 200 in order not to frighten anyone (in other words so you won't get an even break), so you don't even get as much truth with one of these machines as medical science could tell you.

There is no limit to the dangers which are inherent in this kind of gadget. Suppose that just the minute you got your arm in the strap a gal came along "and your heart stood still." Your reading would be triple zero. You would be so worried about the report of Dr. Machine that you probably would miss a good opportunity and so would the girl. It might ruin two lives completely and forever. It isn't impossible, because there is nothing that affects the pulse rate and blood pressure more quickly than emotion.

I do not believe the public will be taken in by this new short cut to diagnosis. I believe they understand that the trained human brain has to go along with the machinery of modern medicine in order to make reports intelligible. I believe they know it is very easy to frighten the timid ones about blood pressure and pulse rate.

Source of Misinformation

Just in case somebody tells you about his blood pressure and his pulse rate in the near future and you should ask where this information came from, don't forget that if he says he knows it reliable because it is done by a machine made to do that, it is probably far less reliable than if he had a little five-year-old child guess at what they were, typed the rates on a slip of paper and gave them to him.

Machinery has a place in medicine and physicians learn an enormous amount from different machines, but in so complicated a thing as human life and human activity, what a machine says about one human being has to be interpreted by another human being.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

M. K. D.:—Is the use of grain alcohol of any benefit in the treatment of acne?

Answer: Alcohol will dissolve grease and fat and of course an acne skin is greasy. This seems to me the only benefit that would come from its use as you describe it.

Services In Our Churches

Trinity Lutherans Take Communion

"Worshipped Him" will be the subject of Rev. George D. Keister of the Holy Trinity English Lutheran church tomorrow. Meaning of the sacrament will be the subject of the service. The sacrament of the Holy Communion will be celebrated and the Order for Public Confession of Sin will be held at that time.

The church school meets at 9:45 with classes for all ages. The lesson topic is "The Infancy and Childhood of Jesus," based on the Gospel of Luke 2:25-40. The subject will be the promotion of the sacrament. Further religious instruction will be given at 11 a. m. in the Sunday school room under the organization—"The Children of the Church," which has classes for children, ages 5 to 12.

The Epiphany season began on Jan. 6 and continues for a period of possible six Sundays, depending upon the date of Easter. The word "Epiphany" means showing forth. It is the period in the Christian church year during which we celebrate the visit of the magi or wise men and the manifestation of Christ to the Gentiles. It is the season during which the church stresses foreign missions.

"Only God is worthy of worship. It would not be proper to give worship to earthly objects or human beings. When the wise men came to pay their homage to the Christ-Child, it was to Him that they gave their gifts and their worship. Worship of God gives the worshiper some blessings that only those who follow this practice can appreciate. Religious fervor and devotion can be expressed in no better way than through our praise, prayers and thanksgiving."

Luther league 6:30. Devotional service. "Habits" Leader, Vera Janick.

Christian Science Topic "Sacrament"

"Sacrament" is the subject of the lesson sermon which will be read at the morning worship of the Christian Science Society tomorrow at 11 a. m. The Sunday service is also broadcast over station WCLE (610 kil.) Cleveland the first and third Sundays of each month at 11 a. m. Sunday school for pupils up to the age of 20 years is held at 9:30 a. m.

The midweek service is held the first Wednesday of each month at the church at 8 p. m.

The Golden Text: "Let us keep the feast, not with old leaven, neither with the leaven of malice and wickedness; but with the unleavened bread of sincerity and truth" (1 Corinthians 5:8).

Included in the citations which comprise the lesson-sermon are the following correlative passages from the Bible and from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "And whatsoever we ask, we receive of Him, because we keep His commandments, and do those things that are pleasing in His sight. And this is His commandment, That we should believe on the name of His Son Jesus Christ, and love one another, as He gave us commandment" (1 John 3:22-23). "Our heavenly Father, divine Love, demands that all men should follow the example of our Master and His apostles and not merely worship Him and His personality. It is said that the phrase divine service has come so generally to mean public worship instead of daily deeds" (Science and Health, p. 40).

This society maintains a reading room at 136 S. Broadway where the Bible and all authorized Christian Science literature may be read or borrowed. Open from 1:30 to 4 p. m. on Monday, Tuesday, Thursday and Friday and from 7 to 9 p. m. on Saturday.

A cordial invitation is extended to all to attend the services and visit the reading room.

Lisi Services For Church Of Saviour

The schedule of services for the Church of Our Saviour for the first Sunday after Epiphany is as follows:

8 a. m. Holy Eucharist.

9:45 a. m. Church school.

Monday at 7:45 p. m. the annual parish meeting, with reports from all organizations and election of the vestry, will be held in the undercroft of the church. All members are urged to attend.

Persons who want anything, know this vicinity. So read it.

Our Source of Strength

There is nothing so helpful for these or any days as the Word of God. We wish that folks everywhere today could turn to the honest searching of the Bible.

The Bible is a great, a good, a glad, a Book from God. It is not a sad Book. The last thing that one can justly say about the Bible is that it is a sad volume. It is indeed a brave strong book. Seldom, to be sure, does it speak easily or flippantly about life, but neither does it ever speak desperately, pessimistically, or depressingly about our existence. Honestly it does admit that things at one time or another, and sometimes for the most part are full of perils and difficulties. But never does Scripture's eternal truths lock us up in a prison, leaving us to anger, despair or remorse.

In the Bible there is always a way out.

It may not be an easy way; it may not be the way that we should have chosen; but a way out there always is.

And God's sure Word promises that if those whose hearts have been softened and made suppliant by the surrounding darkness and difficulties will but take this way.

Holy Power which throbs at the heart of things, which the Bible calls God and Father, will accompany us, and lead us out into the light.

The skirt is forest green rayon crepe. For important formal occasions you may choose the model, center, which has a long-sleeved, button-fronted sweater type top of shadowy black cotton lace, and a shirred, spreading skirt of champagne colored moire with a deep hip border of the lace. CHAPTER TWENTY-THREE

As Horton walked again to his beat on the lawn, a small hurrying figure turned the angle of the house and cannoned into him.

"What the—?" began Horton, then stared at the other in astonishment which rapidly changed to anger. "Huff!" he exclaimed. "What the devil are you doing here? I thought I told you not to come to the house until after dark, and not then unless it was vitally necessary."

"Yus, gov'nor, I know," said the little man, "but it's necessary now."

"Well, come inside," directed Horton, pushing Huff ahead of him through the kitchen door.

"Now then," urged Horton, "what's this all about?"

"They've spotted me, sir," said Huff hoarsely.

The ex-officer regarded him for some moments in silence. "Who spotted you?" he asked finally.

"That there Sir John Meredith and his helings."

"What precisely do you mean by that?"

"Well, sir, it's that there reporter that isn't a reporter."

"Oh, for heaven's sake!" snarled Horton. "Begin at the beginning and explain."

"Well, it's like this, sir," began Huff, who then told how he had encountered a supposed pressman in the Lancaster Arms and how that afternoon he had discovered that it was no pressman he had been talking to, but ex-Detective Sergeant Beef, for many years Meredith's assistant at Scotland Yard.

"I'm scared, Mr. 'orton. They'll have the finger on me before you can wink an eyelid."

"Rubbish!" replied Horton and added, "What do you tell this Beef?"

"Nohin', sir. Nohin', I swear it!"

"Then what have you got the wind up for?" Horton leaned forward, holding the others eyes with his. "Come on, Huff!" he said.

"What did you tell him?"

The ex-convict swallowed. "I... I didn't..." He broke off a moment and stared around the room.

"I don't... Well, sir," he went on miserably, "the fact of the matter is, I was canned—a bit drunk—at the time."

"And you don't know what you said?" added Horton. "Huff, you're a confounded fool!"

"Lumme, Mr. 'orton, sir, you don't think I'd go shootin' me mouth, do yer?"

"Yes, I do."

"But I cross me 'eart that I never said..."

"You don't know what you said," Horton snarled. "Get back to your place and stay put. If I catch you out this house again, I'll kick you from here to Ipswich."

Huff shuffled from the room, crossed the small garden, and emerged through a side gate into a grassy lane. He did not look where he was going and tripped over a small terrier, swore, and missed a sock at the dog.

"I shouldn't do that again if I were you," warned a cold voice behind him. "If you kick my dog I shall certainly kick you."

Huff turned, his rat face anxious. "Why, Mr. Blaydes-Steele, sir!" he exclaimed. "No offence meant, I'm sure. But I thought that there pup was goin' to bite me leg."

"You surprise me, Huff!" said Yves, wondering what the hospital assistant was doing at Vine Cottage with its new tenant.

"Well," spoke Huff awkwardly. "Goodnight, sir."

"Night," said Yves, staring after the little man's retreating figure with eyes narrowed, speculative....

Back in the sitting-room of Vine Cottage, Horton sat in frowning silence. Huff had only proclaimed what was patently obvious to the other. The little crook was badly frightened and a frightened man was dangerous. He might do anything. Anne would have to be warned. He rose from his chair and walked through to the kitchen-quarters. I'm going into Ipswich to telephone," he called.

A muffled voice replied, "Why do you want to go into Ipswich, sir? There's a phone in the house."

"I said I was going into Ipswich to telephone," said Horton. "and I'm going."

He walked round to the tiny garage where he kept his little car and, within an hour, he was calling Paul's Hotel in London from a public telephone booth in Ipswich.

In her private drawing-room, Anne de Vassignac laid the telephone back in its rest and looked across to Prince Satsui.

The hospital man has become frightened, Nikki," she said softly. "I think we should do something about him."

The Japanese nodded and, rising from his chair, rang the bell. The Frenchman (whose intimacies called him Toto le Chat) appeared in answer to its summons.

Satsui looked at him and said, "Madame le Comtesse has work for you."

The Apache bowed, saying politely, "Always at your service Madame."

Cosher Simms elected to talk, and Sir John Meredith learned that Henry Huff was directly involved in the assault case. Of course, Sir John could not entirely rule out coincidence. During a long police career Meredith had made enemies, as was inevitable. It was just possible that this attempt upon his life, in which Simms had been merely the instrument, had been prompted by one of the many men whom Meredith had sent to prison.

Beef was scornful of that theory. "Lumme, Sir John, not even the long arm of coincidence could stretch that far. Why, it all hooks up so neat."

"It certainly seems to," Meredith agreed. "The puzzling thing about the whole layout, Beef, is the Weyland angle. Always supposing that Simms' attack on me was planned by the deVassignac crowd, it means quite definitely that Huff is in the show. That's the third person in Weyland whom we know, or can guess, to be in touch with the other side. There's this bord Huff, the gallant ex-Captain, Philip Horton, and Norma Halsey or Bailey, whom we may conjecture to be in it from the report of that telephone conversation sent in by the Special Branch at Paul's. You remember, Beef, that Horton said over the phone to Madame de Vassignac that 'Norma' turned up at the house on his arrival?"

"I think I'll go over to Weyland and see Mr. Blaydes-Steele. I'll find out from him, first of all, if he knows anything about Huff, and then I think we must interview the latter. By the way, Beef, you impressed on the local police, when you handed Simms over to them, that the thing was to be kept dark for the moment?"

"I did, Sir John."

Beef drove Meredith to Weyland. "You know," Sir John said as they sped along, "it was a tactical error to miss knocking me off last night. The mistake lay in attempting an operation of which the result was by no means a foregone conclusion. In other words, Beef, they couldn't afford to miss. The other side's getting rattled."

"That may be true, Sir John, but I'm still as far away from the solution as ever I was."

"So am I," confessed Meredith, "as far as locating the necklace is concerned. But don't you see what's happening, Beef? We're not dealing with professionals, at least the professionals are got running the show. The Count and Countess de Vassignac and Prince Satsui aren't habitual criminals. Where an experienced crook would do nothing, these people overplay their hand and the moment the slightest thing goes wrong, they try to cover it up. Then they make blunders like that of last night."

"Have you ever stopped to think, Beef, why the percentage of murderers caught is extraordinarily high—higher, in fact, than any other type of criminal? It's because in ninety-nine cases out of a hundred, the murderer is not a professional criminal and makes some mistake which gives him away because he's not practiced in deception and doesn't know when to leave well enough alone.

"No, Beef, I think this affair of the missing necklace is going to solve itself with very little help from me. At least, if it doesn't solve itself, the de Vassignac crowd are going to hand me the solution on a plate."

When they reached Weyland Hall, they were admitted by Stokes, showed them straight into the drawing-room where Lord Lan-chesster was seated in a deep chair with his leg up on a hassock.

Yves Blaydes-Steele was with him. "Hello, John!" exclaimed the Earl. "Good morning, Sergeant! It's too much to hope you've got something to tell us?"

Meredith smiled. "Yes and no," he said. "I really came over for some information." He saw the brothers' faces fall and went on quickly. "Don't be too depressed. I think we're getting ahead very nicely, but before I start talking, I want to know if you can tell me anything about a fellow who works up at your little Cottage Hospital here, a chap by the name of Huff?"

"Huff!" exclaimed Yves. "Funny you should mention him. I saw him last night coming out of one of the houses in the village, and I thought it a bit odd at the time because the place has only just been taken by a stranger and..."

"Don't tell me," interrupted Meredith, "that he was coming out of Vine Cottage?"

Yves' jaw dropped. "Barnacles and bull's eyes!" he ejaculated. "How the devil do you do it, John?"

Meredith was human enough to grin. Then he went on to give them a resume of what he knew up to date, but leaving out all reference to Lancaster's secretary, the mysterious Miss Halsey.

"Well, I'm glad you feel cheerful about it all!" exclaimed Blaydes-Steele. "But I can't see any daylight in it. As to that verse..."

"He shrugged and said no more."

"Well, anyway," said Meredith, "would you come along with us to the Cottage Hospital, Yves? I suppose you know everybody up there, and I'd like to get at Huff without scaring him."

Ten minutes later, they were waiting in a spotless little room at the Weyland Cottage hospital. The door opened and a pleasant-faced, middle-aged man came into the room.

"Hello, Doctor," saluted Yves. "Sorry to bother you, but I've come on rather a peculiar mission. I'll tell you all about it later. In the meantime, you chaps had better know each other. Dr. Hewitt—Sir

John Meredith, Detective Sergeant Beef—Dr. Hewitt."

The men shook hands and Yves went on, "Have you got that porter, Huff, around somewhere and available?"

Doctor Hewitt looked up at the mention of the man's name. He hesitated, then said, "He's not here."

"Not here?" echoed Blaydes-Steele.

"No," went on Dr. Hewitt. "He asked to have the day off, for urgent private reasons."

"Any idea where he's gone to?" asked John frowning.

"None. You might get some news of him at his cottage. You can see it from here." The physician went to a window. "It's that one with the green door."

"Thanks a lot," said Yves. "I think we'll shove over there right away."

"I say, is anything wrong?" asked Dr. Hewitt curiously.

Yves shot a look at Meredith, who nodded and said, "There's something very wrong indeed, I'm afraid. If he should come back which I'm afraid now seems unlikely, hang on to him and get hold of your local policeman."

Consider for a moment, if you will, the idea of burial garments. I have come to the conclusion that they are far better for the purpose than is a regular street or party dress. Perhaps you would appreciate knowing more about them.

These dresses are as truly stylish on the recumbent form as are formal frocks in their proper sphere. They are well made of high quality materials, and are designed to simplify dressing.

The Stark Memorial displays a fine line of burial garments. Variety in materials, colors, and styles makes a suitable choice certain.

NEW SOUTHERN STYLES GLAMOROUS, ECONOMICAL

Left, black satin lastex two-piece bathing suit; flowered beach robe over white suit, center; right, knit two-piece bathing suit.

Those lucky ladies who expect to take a trip to the southland to recover from the holiday excitement, will soon be shopping. Since everyone is being conservative these days, this department is suggesting a basic wardrobe to see you through your vacation both glamorously and economically. A pretty evening dress, a slacks suit, sports dress, play suit and bathing outfit should be sufficient. The three styles shown are so different in both fabric, line and cut, that one of them is bound to be alluring on any type of figure. The first suit is a two-piece of black satin lastex with short, tight-fitting trunks, open midriff and bra top which goes over the shoulders and neck and ties in back halter fashion. There is a matching bandanna. The second is a flowered and voluminous beach robe with short sleeves and bright buttons, worn over a one-piece white wool suit. The third is one of the very newest fashions, a two-piece affair consisting of bra top and knit trunks that shows a wide expanse of midriff.

Quakers Upset Alliance Cagers, 29-26, Hang Up Sixth Triumph

LOCALS PLAY BEST BALL OF CAMPAIGN TO TOP AVIATORS

Guappone Paces Salemites With 10; Whittingham Leads Alliance

Playing what may be termed "their best ball of the season," the Salem High Quakers snatched the lead from the Alliance quintet early in the second period and held it until the end of the game to upset the favored Aviators, 29-26, last night on the Mt. Union Memorial hall court.

The win was the seventh of the season for the Salemites while the loss was the third straight for Alliance.

Ray "Goose" McGaffick started festivities early in the initial quarter as he hooped one from his favorite spot near the middle. From then on in, it was anyone's ball game and the Aviators set out to try to prove that they had what it took to capture it. The score saw-sawed back and forth in the first frame and was deadlocked three times. Salvatore "Tut" Guappone and Johnny Volio added buckets to the Salem total while Fritz led the Alliance scoring in the period with a pair of field.

Quakers In Front
Came the second stanza and a barrage of Salem buckets to put the Quakers in front. Guappone hit a pair of fielders early in this stanza to keep the locals in the ball game while Tom Faulkner and Earl Branfield found the rim for the Aviators. Just before the intermission, "Tut" Guappone and Johnny Volio again connected to break a 13-13 deadlock and give the Salemites a four point edge at the end of the first 16 minutes of play.

The game was exceptionally clean in the first half with Alliance having three personal fouls and the Quakers only one.

At the start of the third quarter, Whittingham flipped in a long one to give the Aviators a flying start towards victory. But the Quaker cause wasn't lost as Bob "Scubby" Sullivan proved as he hit his first bucket of the tilt. McGaffick, after being held scoreless the second period, again found his favorite spot on the floor and proceeded to dump in two quick fielders. Bob Scully again found the range and dropped another shot through the cords to boost the Quakers' margin. Tom Faulkner hit a pair of beautiful left-hand hook shots to help Alliance in the scoring department. The quarter ended with the Quakers on the long end of a 26-20 count.

Freeze The Ball
In the last quarter the Salem lads began freezing the ball to protect their slender lead. Dick Fritz rimmed another long shot to cut the margin to 26-22 and a long one by Whittingham brought the Aviators to within two points of the visitors. At this stage of the quarter, things got rather rough and several fouls were called on Alliance players.

Guappone was awarded three penalty shots in this frame and dropped in two of them. A long shot by Gelitz with just a minute and a half to play cut the Salem lead to two points but Sam Priddy cut the cords with a foul shot to give Salem a three point edge. The Alliance cagers tried desperately and Dick Fritz made a two-pointer only to have it ruled no good for traveling.

With just a few seconds to go, the locals again got possession of the ball and froze it until the final whistle.

A great delegation of Salem fans was pleased with the Quakers' performance and said so with loud victory yells which had the walls of the Mt. Union court vibrating.

In the first half the Quakers seemed afraid to work the ball into the back court. They were jittery and it affected their passing somewhat so the boys started to connect from way out. They followed Coach Herb Brown's instructions to the letter and as a result smoothed-out their passing game in the second half.

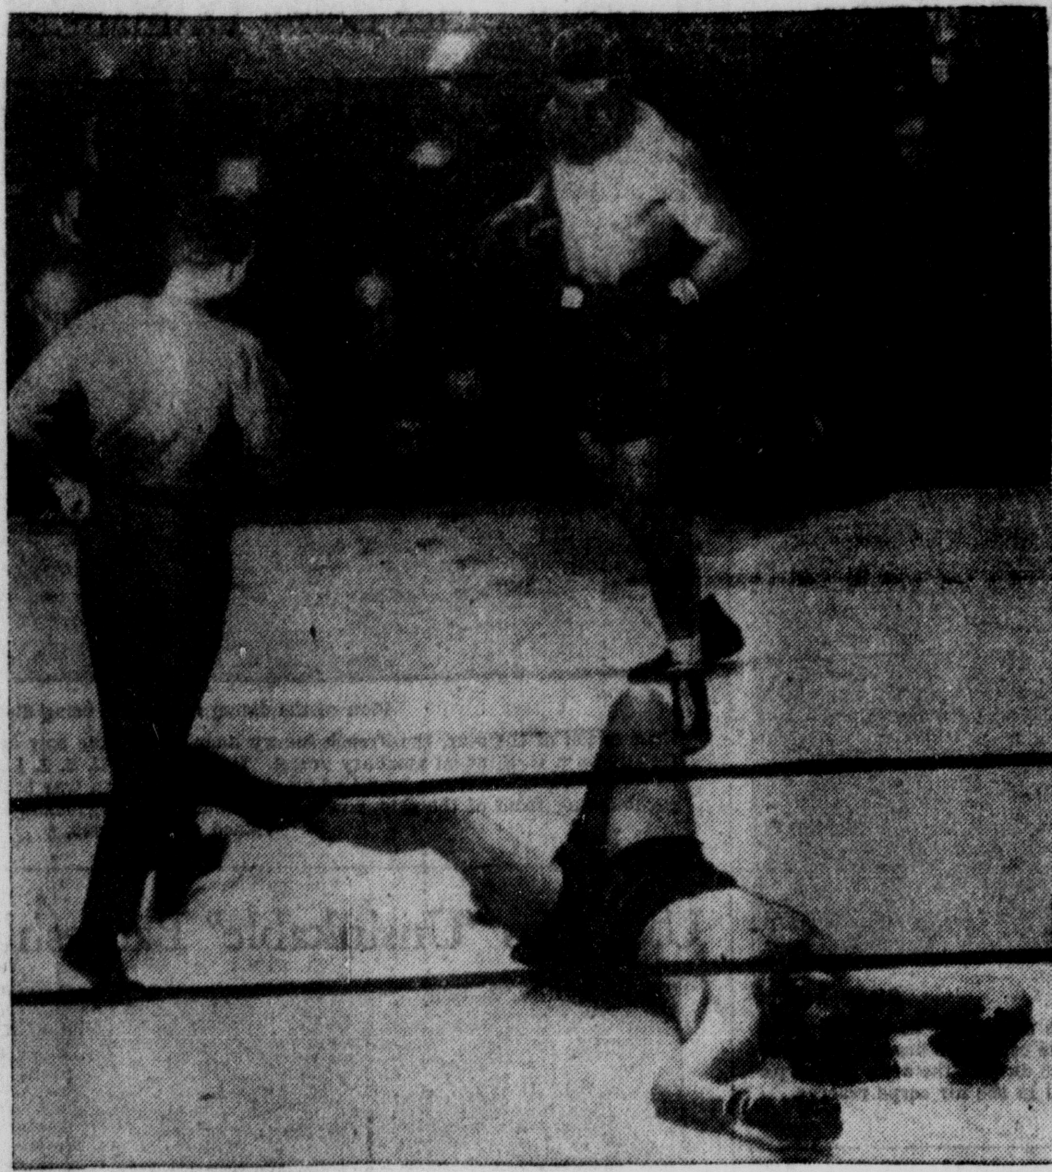

Surprise To Fans
The Quakers' victory came as a surprise to the fans who were afraid they could not control the backboards. It is true the Aviators were much taller than the streamlined Quakers but with Sam Priddy and "Scubby" Sullivan doing a lot of work under the bucket and the other three players keeping the Alliance fast-break under control the team worked perfectly in all phases of the game. Their average from the field was very high and they hit seven out of 13 at the foul line. The Aviators' average from the field was not so high but they made two out of three from the foul line.

Coach Brown's charges put on a nice ball "freezing" act in the last period as they controlled the flight of the ball the majority of the time.

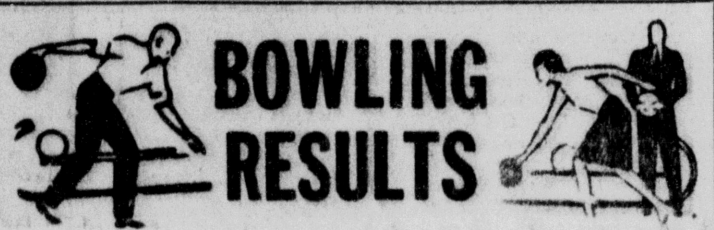

In the scoring column last night, it was Salem's "Tut" Guappone who ran off with individual honors. Ray McGaffick was close behind with three two-pointers and a foul shot for a seven point total for Alliance. It was Whittingham who topped the scorers. He flipped in seven while Faulkner and Fritz accounted for six apiece. Salem's next opponent will be East Palestine. The game will be played in the Bulldogs' new gym next Friday night.

As Louis Blasted Out One-Round Vengeance Over Baer

The stricken hulk of Challenger Buddy Baer off his meek evidence of the fistic terror Champion Joe Louis unleashed against the giant Californian, whom he hucked to the canvas in just two minutes and fifty-six seconds of the first round. This awe-inspiring performance of Louis against the challenger who last May knocked him out of the ring in Washington, was cheered by 20,000 fans in New York's Madison Square Garden. The bout was for the benefit of the Navy Relief society, Louis donating his entire $70,000 purse.

Meissner's Service, Federal league leaders, cut off one threat to their supremacy last night as they battered the second place Sheen's into a three-game defeat on the Masonic alleys. Thomas rolled a 226 for the winners his second game while Vesey led off with a 200.

The Eagles, presently roosting in third place, dropped two to Brownies but held their position. Vin Malloy's 203 topped the winners. In other matches of the evening, the Sanitary Shippers dropped a pair to the Sanitary Foremen and the K. of C. dropped a pair from Beeler's.

Kaercher rolled a 211 for Beeler's his second game.

The Colonial Finance keggers of the Grate Ladies league kept right on rolling last night as they racked up another shutout win at the Grate alleys. Leaders of the assault against the helpless Trades Class five were Caldwell with a 224 and Ramsey with a 200. Coy's dropped a pair to Eagles No. 2 and Haldi's to end the night.

In other matches, the last place Salem Chinas copied two from Eagles-Gross with Prior rolling a 209 to pace them. Hi Ho surprised Schwartz's by taking two out of three and Eagles No. 1 shut out the A. A. A.

BASEBALL DURING WAR IS APPROVED BY U. S. CONGRESS

It's Factor In Keeping High Morale of Country, Say Nation's Leaders

(By Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.—Members of Congress went to bat today for war time continuance of professional baseball.

They contended that the national pastime was a powerful factor in keeping high the country's morale, and should be kept going even though some of the games' outstanding stars may be with the armed forces.

"It would be foolish to do otherwise," commented House Minority Leader Joseph Martin (R-Mass.), who played shortstop on a semi-pro team in his home town of North Attleboro years ago. "Morale must be maintained."

While maintaining that no exceptions should be made for baseball players capable of military service, the Republican leader said that professional teams could provide good competition, as well as relaxation for the fans, by using players in the upper and lower age brackets.

"I'm for keeping it going," declared Rep. Edward A. Kelly (D-Ll.). "It's a matter of morale and recreation. And by keeping pro ball going, we encourage amateur baseball, which in turn builds up bodies of our youngsters. And that's what we need today." Kelly, in days gone by caught for Toledo in the American Association, and played in the Ohio State and Central leagues.

Said Rep. Walter G. Andrews

(R-NY), a Princeton football player in his college days and later head coach of his alma mater, eleven.

"Professional baseball has a place in the country, even in time of war. And I think that the example set by two of the game's greatest players, Sergeant Greenberg and Bob Feller, is a good thing for the country."

Hank Greenberg, slugging Detroit outfielder, recently reenlisted in the army after expiration of his year's training period, while Bob Feller, ace of the Cleveland mound staff, signed up for navy duty with the hope that he would be able to pitch a few strikes for Uncle Sam.

Building in 1942

Now is the time for you to begin planning with your contractor for your new home. He has time to go over your plans with care and give you a true picture of the home you will get and the price you will pay for it. Some people have told us they were not going to build this year because of increased prices and material being hard to get. This, in the most part, is untrue. If you build a home not over $6,000 in this area it is considered a defense house, and all materials are obtainable.

Then, too, the government has set the price on some materials and will on a great many more. This brings the price of materials lower than paid since July, 1941. With wages up and work good—NOW is the time to build. See your contractor today, or come in and see us. We can show you pictures of all types of homes and secure blueprints for you.

We have all the latest materials and prices. Let us prove to you now is the time to build as soon as the weather permits
